POWER FRANCHISE DISCUSSED AT PUBLIC MEETING

A public meeting of some 50 town ratepayers was held in the Gleichen Community Hall on Monday last week, over which Mr. J. Boyd presided. The representatives of the Calgary Power Company were present. Mr. Murray acted as secretary of the meeting.

Mayor Yates, when called upon, explained that the object of the meeting was to find out the actual feeling of the ratepayers and electric light users regarding the franchise recently submitted by the Power Company. He explained that the delay in presenting the franchise was not the fault of the town council but rather the Power Co. He said he knew there was some opposition to the terms of the franchise and that a public meeting was looked for, but he wondered why the turnout was so small in spite of the fact that the meeting was well advertised. He invited discussion and said questions either verbally or in writing would be welcome.

Mr. Murray read the franchise which contained twenty or more clauses. Each clause was discussed separately. The first question voted on in regard to the 10 year period, which was thought by several, who spoke, to be too long a period for any franchise to be developed in electric power was proceeding so rapidly that to tie up to any agreement at the present high rates would be a mistake. A two year period was suggested.

Most of the clauses read were discussed, probably due to the fact that they were not properly understood, or were considered of minor importance, or it may have been to the anxiety of the audience not to delay the meeting, as the document was long and the hall was getting cold every minute.

The clause dealing with the rat created a general discussion. It was generally thought that after 10 years of high rates the time was ripe for general scaling down and that an effort should be made to have this done.

Many of the questions submitted were not answered before the meeting closed.

Before adjournment a resolution was moved, seconded and carried offering the franchise back to the council with instructions to try to arrange for a more satisfactory agreement—lower rates and a shorter period of time.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

(By F. W. Gershaw)

The speech from the Throne promised many things that appealed to all members of the Liberal Party. A motion was made that an address be presented to His Excellency thanking him for his speech. It is likely that all parties will agree to this although, usually, a long debate takes place on it. Mr. King spoke first. He spoke of the success the Liberals had had in the by-elections, reviewed the record of his party regarding Old Age Pensions and other social legislation since he published his book on industry and humanity, eighteen years ago. He said he would not oppose any of these reform measures and offered to do all he could to hurry proceedings and limit talk so that these bills dealing with unemployment insurance, pensions and etc., which Mr. Bennett had promised over the radio could pass the house and the senate at once. He hoped there would be no delay on account of constitutional difficulties.

Mr. Bennett replied at length. He explained that the program was not yet voted on and that the faster the vote on the bill the faster a reciprocity treaty was being arranged with the U.S.A. and indicated that the details would be made known in a very short time.

The people of the west will hope to see the American duty removed on our cattle going to the states. He strongly defended the Empire agreements stating that they had saved Canada. He also seemed to indicate that there would be no general election until next fall, although, of course, no definite announcement was made.

Several other members spoke in favor of making changes in the

ANNUAL RATEPAYERS MEETING HAS SMALL ATTENDANCE

The annual meeting of the ratepayers and the town council took place Friday night in the Community Hall and was very poorly attended by the ratepayers. There being only six of them present. No doubt the hockey game had much to do with the lack of interest shown. Those who attended were well satisfied with the way the town fathers had handled the affairs of the town for the past year. As each of the different committees gave their report the meeting adopted them.

Harry Carrick acted as chairman and put the business through with dispatch.

The school board meeting was called immediately after the town meeting. Some how or other the school board got lost and failed to find their way to the hall. However, Mr. Murray was equal to the occasion and read the minutes and explained what the board had done during the year.

CURLING CLUB HONORS RETIRING PRESIDENT

Friday evening the Curling Club held their annual smoker in the Community Hall. At the same time the president of the club, A. Battis, who will shortly be transferred to Brooks, where he will continue his duties as an office in the R.C.M.C. The customs presented Mr. Battis with an elegant smoking set in commemoration of his excellent work while president of the club. The evening was spent in song and story and the speaker at 8:30 was adourned to the rink to the hockey game.

WILL TAKE VOTE NEXT MONTH NEW POULTRY PLAN

Whether or not the poultry industry of Alberta will come within the provisions of the Natural Products Marketing Act is to be determined by a vote of poultry producers.

Balotting on the proposed Alberta Poultry Marketing Plan will be held during the week of February 17. All producers having flocks of 25 birds or more, including hen-turkeys, ducks and geese, are urged by the Alberta Poultry Marketing Board to register their opinions regarding this plan by applying at their nearest post office for the necessary forms.

These forms should be filled out in accordance with the directions given, with name and address to be printed, and returning officer in the envelope supplied. The ballots must be mailed by producers not later than February 23 in order to be considered.

Poultry producers are also urged to avail a series of radio broadcasts to be shortly announced and given over an Alberta network regarding the purposes and details of the Alberta Poultry Marketing Plan, and to attend meetings now being arranged in all districts of Alberta which the marketing plan will fully explain, before making definite decisions regarding the marking of their batches.

money system, the tariff structure and etc. But there is in evidence so far at least a spirit of good will and a desire by all to get behind any sincere effort to reform the capitalistic system.

On Thursday the debate on the health end and health problems occupied the time of the members. There is a strong feeling that the very best medical care should be available for every person in Canada. It was pointed out that the very rich and the very poor could get this but that the great middle class did not wish to accept this as charity and could not pay the high fees charged. LOCAL AUDIENCE HEAR EXPOSITION OF SOCIAL CREDIT

That people are greatly interested in the Social Credit movement was shown by the number of our town people that turned out on a cold Friday night to hear a discussion on the economic principle evolved by Major Goshen of Calgary.

Major Goshen showed himself to be thoroughly acquainted with his subject and dealt with so lucidly and comprehensively that only two or three questions were asked at the close of the address. Mr. M. Bolinger acted as chairman and introduced the speakers.

The meeting was opened by singing O Canada, with Miss Bolinger at the piano, who also accompanied her brother Elmer in violin selections at intervals during the evening and led in the singing of the national anthem at the close.

The first speaker called was Mr. A. C. Robertson who stated that he appeared only to show which side of the fence he was on and why he was on that side. He said that he believed in the principles of social credit as outlined by Major Douglas and in Mr. Aberhart's proposed application of them to the province of Alberta. He favored it because it could harm no one and would help many who were much in need of help.

Mr. Phillips of Calgary spoke briefly and much to the point. He stressed the great need of our lending a helping hand to those who are steady down and out, and to the last man who was rapidly arriving at that state. He spoke of the condition of our town people being forced to meet as they go out into the world and the utter hopelessness of their being able, under our present system, to make homes for themselves, and he appealed to fathers and mothers to lay aside争夺 and party strife and vote or a principle that was non political but nevertheless sound and which if adopted by any party would be to the utmost security for them children.

Mr. Goshen on rising stated she brought all her hearers know pretty well the condition of things as far as money and the like, but had no knowledge of what caused these conditions.

The question therefore, is what are we going to do about them?

The remedies we have tried so far were, to put one party out of power and put another in. And when that party did not produce the results we desired, we put them out of power and put the old party back in again.

So we have wasted a lot of valuable time playing horse with political parties and have got no where. This does not seem to be a very attractive display of good business judgement. So she told a story. Once there was a man who had two trucks. They were both of ancient models and very nearly worn out. He made a trip with one of them and had a lot of trouble and expense, so he took the other truck next day and had a lot more trouble and expense. Then he tried making one good truck out of the two bad ones but it would not work. The parts could not fit. His good judgement told him that he was wasting time and money trying to make them do his work. So he bought a new modern truck and had no further trouble. It cost him less in the long run to carry his business on his business.

The business, she said, of any province or federation of provinces is to take care of its people through its government, and our various governments are trying more or less earnestly to do this work by patching up their old equipment, or in other words by certain prescribed methods, that should have been on the scrap pile many years ago. Indeed, she should never have existed. This is to be done or as we now call it, this is to be done but it is more being proposed to reply to the relief system by unanswerable arguments.

These methods are, however, to be used in the relief system by unanswerable arguments. These methods do not add one single cent to the sum total of the purchasing power of the people of Canada. These methods simply take from those who have a little left, a job if you like to put it that way, and gives to those who have nothing at all or are unemployed, but the purchasing power of the people as a whole is unchanged.

Now, said the speaker, we all agree that there has been no failure in production. There has obviously been in distribution and that has been caused by the lack of purchasing power in the hands of consumers. Our problem is to give the purchasing power to whom it belongs. Major H. D. Douglas has solved that problem for us and has laid a foundation upon which we may build an economic system that will altogether do away with poverty in the midst of plenty and allow our people to live as free citizens in a province or country that belongs to us. The principles upon which this foundation is built are three in number and are as solid and sound as the proverbial rock upon which wise men built their houses.

The pillars and piers upon which the Social Credit structure can and will be built are:

1. Our cultural heritage.
2. Basic dividends from unearned increments.
3. Just prices for all products and services.

Taking these in order let me show you the foundation principle upon which they rest, and we will go back to a period about four hundred years ago when our forefathers first landed on this continent. This country at that time was almost worthless but the shrewd men that our forefathers were, saw that it had great potential wealth and they took possession in the name of their king. They then set to work, and the first thing they had to do was to cut down the trees and make shelter for themselves. Then they tilled the soil, so that it would produce the food requirements. They raised sheep, goats, cattle on the grass that was abundant, as further food supplies and that they might have wherewithal to make their clothing. This work went on and increased as more and more people came into the land. Their object in doing all this was to build up a heritage that they could pass on to future generations. This work has gone on and on until now it has been handed over to us who have succeeded our forefathers, and we have been and are now doing our share in building this heritage. The question is to whom does it belong? We are that we are entitled to have it still longer. We share in it and we should and must use that little share to protect and care for those who have been co-workers with us in building up this heritage. This pier on which we propose to build the social credit structure is at least sound and is founded on the rock of ownership.

Then we go on to the next pier, Basic Dividends. Around this pier centres most of the discussions and the fellow who says, "It won't work." The justification of this pier, of course, depends upon the premises that we as a people own something and have a right to use it. Granted that we do own something and have a right to use it, the social credit scheme we are considering, proposes to use it in this way. Taking into consideration that value that the Dominion Government placed on the province of Alberta when it was handed over to us, in a practically raw state, it is quite correct to say that it was worth two billion dollars more than it did when it was taken over. It should be worth more now after thirty years of development and we all know it. If then by development we have added two hundred million dollars to the province, we at least are entitled to the unearned increment of 5 per cent on the two hundred million of increased values. This would then form the basis of a credit of ten million dollars which when divided by the number of adult bonifide citizens of Alberta would give each of them a credit of $25. This credit they must use within a month by tendering non-negotiable certificates, which would be supplied along with the credit, in payment of the goods they would purchase. The dealer would accept these non-negotiable certificates, he would cash them in a check from his customer and turn them in to the bank, which would be made the State Credit House, and there the dealer would be credited and the individual customers debited with corresponding amounts. Then the dealer could take this credit he had built up by depositing non-negotiable certificates and with another non-negotiable certificate pay the wholesale house and the wholesale house would in like manner pay the producer and so on till the credit of $25 that was originally given to each individual might be used four

Putting the World Together Again

A new book recently issued under the title "Courage For To-day" begins with a little story that has a lot of meaning in it. A man gave his small son a world map and a jigsaw puzzle. It had been put together by the child, but when he was shown time the child reported that the picture of the world was all put together. "How could you have done it so fast?" asked the father in amazement. "Oh, it was easy," answered the child. "You see, there was a picture of a man on the other side. When I put him together, the world was put together, too."

Men and peoples, and governments, are trying to put this old world together again. The science of planning and the art of politics advocated as the only way in which this gigantic task can be accomplished are beyond computation or classification. Speeches written with suggestions of all kinds newspaper and magazine articles flow in an uninterrupted stream from the press, press, bodies, and people at present the speaker's writer's idea of the particular thing that must be done. To-day's brilliant suggestion is completely destroyed by to-morrow's contribution until finally all of us are in a fog.

Men of prominence, leaders of their fellow men, change their views over night and day, and demand that the world be reorganized and rechristened and championed yesterday, while nations almost in the twinkle of an eye abandon policies and forms of government which for scores of years, even centuries, have been accepted as traditionally sound and wise. One group demands that man must retreat its steps backward to the tribal community state and so the democratic, progressive group say man must be deprived of those personal liberties won by him through centuries of struggle and must be regimented, controlled and ordered like privates in an army and be made to surrender all hope or right to profit above a standard form of living which may result from his individual initiative and enterprise. The other groups who are determined that the world will be reorganized and rechristened, who believe that man is incapable of self-government, that democracy is an abject failure, and that only a select few are wise enough to set up enough capital to govern and that they should take full control and rule the world, and rule it by force if and when necessary, and impose their will and ideas upon all others. These demand for Fascism and dictatorship.

Each and every one of these men who are trying to recapture the simple lesson which the small boy with his jigsaw puzzle so quickly demonstrated, namely, that if man himself is made right the world itself will be right. Business in the hands of dishonest men will be dishonest business, and its mere transfer to honest men does not make it honest. There has been as much, if not more, graft and corruption and just as many scandals made, if, indeed, not more, under governments as there have been in public business. Private business has corrupted and bedeviled governments, but so, too, have governments corrupted and destroyed private business and made huge and costly blunders. In all governments, private, even driven by their people, are more responsible for the present bogs of the world than is private business as now constituted.

And who is responsible? Many an honest business man has been forced to make a stand and demand justice because his honest ideals have demanded it of him. The same is true of his public-minded men charged with the duties and responsibilities of government. A government adopts a policy in the general public interest, it imposes a tax for the necessary purpose, and an average man and woman cudgel their brains to devise ways and means of getting around and trapping their responsibilities. One person snuggles to escape paying taxes. Customs duties another swears to a false affidavit to avoid paying a gasoline tax, still another "does" an income tax return, and so it goes.

Conscience, which does not effect a cure; it is man himself who must change. It is the human heart that must change. If man is made right there will continue to be dishonesty and wrong no matter what the system may be, and the larger the degree of power placed in the hands of man, the greater the wrongs will be because the greater the power always leads to the grasping for evil, and because the possession of power always leads to the grasping for the power regardless of the methods whereby it may be obtained.

Governments control not only a country; not to usurp the rights and deny the liberties of the people, except such as control and direct their governments; not the government controls and directs the people. It is the duty and responsibility of governments to check and control the dishonest and eliminate wrongs and abuses imposed by individuals or groups of individuals upon society. That is the function of governments acting in the interests of all but it is not the function of governments to interfere with or usurp the rights of individuals in the proper carrying of their own lives and in the carrying on of their legitimate occupations.

The individual rights of man are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Life is more important than liberty and liberty and the pursuit of happiness is more important than wealth. Liberty, which more than a regimented mode of existence and a static status of living, is the goal of happiness must be left to the individual otherwise he cannot be happy. God conferred on man a mind and will of his own, and man must work out his salvation as far as he can by such institutions as may himself devise and set up to assist him in the proper education and otherwise rise to higher things and nobler conceptions.

Politicians, financiers, economists, social workers,—all must come to a realization and acceptance of the fact demonstrated by the small boy's jigsaw puzzle, namely, that the swiftest way to put this old world together again is to put man himself together as a Divine Creator intended him to be.

Seed Oats Are Scarce

Breath And Early Frost Has Menaced the Viable Supply

F. W. Townley-Smith, of Lashburn, national vice-president of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, was re-elected president of the Saskatchewan branch of the association at the annual convention held at the University of Saskatchewan. He reported that the Saskatchewan grain farmers learned that the combination effects of drought and early frost had seriously menaced the viable supply of seed oats. So severe was the harm done to crops last summer that ordinary seed might carry as many as 40 wild oats to the pound and the association discussed the lowering of germination percentage required in registered seed.

Unless some reduction was allowed in the germination percentage required for registered oats, much of this high-grade seed might fail to make the grade and the pure seed touched by the frost fall into the common class, it was pointed out. Authorities have suggested lowering the required germination to 80 per cent for No. 1, 75 per cent for No. 2, and 65 per cent for No. 3, the same percentages as for commercial seed. The matter was left to the C.S.G.A. executive.

Thousands of family parcels of toys were sent to settlers rehabilitated in Ontario and Quebec by government and municipal back-to-the-land schemes, and to new homesteaders in Northern Saskatchewan. Heavy bulk shipments of toys were made by eastern Scout toy shops to assist their brother Scouts in the West to carry on the good work. In addition, Scouts in the East distributed thousands of small things among the children of their own districts who might otherwise have been overlooked.

Toys were not the only medium for Scout good turns at Christmas. In several centres, mostly in the eastern provinces, the boys conducted "relief barrel" campaigns. Large barrels were placed in grocery stores with signs inviting customers to purchase one extra article and place it in the barrel for distribution to the needy at Christmas. Thousands of hampers of food were provided in this manner. In one centre Boy Scouts sold apples on the streets and with the proceeds bought hampers for needy families. In another they sponsored a theatre matinee for children to which the price of admission was one article of canned food, and the receipts were used for Christmas distribution.

Scouts are born not made. There was one of them on a street at Baltimore, Md., the other day. He was dawdling on the sidewalk when he saw some children in a parked motor car release the brake and the car started rolling down a hill, while their mother stood distractingly on the sidewalk.

In an instant he took in the situation and the frightful tragedy that might ensue. He rushed after the car, caught up, leaped in and pressed on the brake but before the car had gone careening upon the sidewalk, mother had been arrested for less, is to say, than to live in the poor house.

Professor Edwin S. Burdell, of the department of economics and social science at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is author of those observations—those and a few more.

For instance, Professor Burdell tells us fewer married men commit crimes and fewer go insane.

The death rate, he says, is much lower among married men than unmarried, and the insurance risk is less for the married than the single.

"Marriage is the best insurance in the world—insurance against crime, insanity, poverty, and premature death. The bachelor hasn't the social responsibility of the married man. As a rule, he is answerable only to himself. Therefore, when he is tempted to commit crime there is not the deterrent of thought of consequences."

With Christmas Toys

Eighty thousand children were supplied with Christmas toys through a chain of 150 toy shops operated across the country from coast to coast by Canadian Boy Scouts. Since their inception eleven years ago Canadian Boy Scout toy shops have collected, repaired, repainted and distributed nearly two million toys over half-a-million Canadian children. In many centres scarcity of old toys this past year caused the Scouts to try their hand at making new ones, and wholesale quantities of new wagons, trucks, tractors, racers, doll bedrooms sets and other toys to delight the childlike heart were added to Santa's pack.

Youthful Training

Lord Bessborough Opens Campaign To Extend Boy Scout Movement

With an appeal for an expansion of youth citizenship training to "hundreds of small communities which at present have no organized activities of any kind for boys," Lord Bessborough, governor-general of Canada, opened a campaign to extend the benefits of the Boy Scout movement to 35,000 more young Canadians.

Of the many so-called "youth movements" in the world for boys, Lord Bessborough said the Boy Scouts appealed to him most. In his opinion, this organization, which laid such stress on honor, loyalty and neighborliness, and on "playing the game" was the finest and best suited for Canada.

"Canada has 65,000 excellent Scouts," the governor-general said, "but I know that is not enough. There should be at least 100,000 in this country." He asked that the coming visit to Canada next spring of Lord Baden-Powell, world chief Scout, be celebrated by an expansion and improvement of the movement, and plans for "greatly extending and increasing its usefulness to Canada."

Lord Bessborough remarked he was starting his fifth and last year in Canada as governor-general. One impression stood out more vividly than all others he had gathered in his travels throughout the Dominion: "that is Canada, as a country, is vitally instinct with the spirit of youth."

"Canada to-day seems to me predominantly conscious of the needs of youth, anxious to give youth a fair chance, proud of its own boys and girls, and determined to make the most of the fine new material of citizenship which those splendid boys and girls provide," His Excellency said. "And this explains what I have also noticed everywhere, that in Canada, the elders seem to stay younger to keep youth in their hearts longer than they do in most countries. There is, in fact, throughout this great country, a deep seated sympathy with youth, a realization of the obligations of age to youth, which is one of Canada's greatest national assets."

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know about, without asking him first.

When it comes to magnesium, that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Made in Canada.

So—always say "Phillips'" when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this; the finest men know. Made in Canada.

Safety for You and Yours
You can assist others by refusing to buy any medicine which is not genuine. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the only safe and effective remedy for constipation. It is the best laxative in the world.

An American Tribute

Comments On The One Hundred And Fifteenth Birthday Of The "London Times"

And while one thinks of births and deaths, of years and men and fame, it is proper, I think, to recall that yesterday the London Times (yes, "The Thunderer"—though I shall not use that expression again) marked its one hundred and fifteenth birthday. And for this we must all, even in America, be thankful. There are British newspapers whose position I more admire—the Manchester Guardian, for example; there are those in which the writing is more sprightly with strong feeling—that rattling Tory paper, the Morning Post, for instance.

But an England, a United Kingdom, a British Empire, I am afraid I must go farther indeed, and say, a world—without The Times would be not only inconceivable but a poorer, duller world by far. The Times may be, and is, an occasion stuff; there are days when its effort to weigh all points and judge with the grand aloofness of a refined Jove irritate me to the explosion point; and whole stretches on end when the sober elegance and Latin furnishing of its columns turn me into a shouting admirer of the clipped, hard-holed, kick-in-the-teeth school of writing. But these are, after all, by the way; inevitably one accepts The Times as one does current events; and the intractable facts met as stubborn and inflexible a force as themselves in the solid public school style that turns them regularly into An Orderly and Comprehensive View of Our Own Day.

Not many days ago there fell the hundred and fifteenth anniversary of Dr. Johnson's death and The Times, gravely marking it with an editorial, said some things wholly applicable to itself on its own birthday. Thus: "Without his knowledge the man would have been too far along us to let us live"; altogether English, the quintessence of England, flower and husk of it together. And so indeed is The Times. The boom of the doctor's voice, the bulk of him, the ranging curiosity of his deeply conservative mind, his devotion to his native land, his learning, the authority of his pronouncements, the deference shown him—are not these qualities one expects—finds also in the long, crowded column of The Times?

When death was approaching "no man could appear more collected, mode devout, less terrified." In the welter of the present, The Times looks up the scene as Dr. Johnson did upon his end: "This tremendous life, whose author—comes down to us as the greatest personality, the most absolute man that England has ever produced. Johnson was at the heart of things, known to all; not hidden nor overwhelmed in the crowd and the rush of life but overtopping it and dominating it"

These two forces will meet, at Armageddon in 1942 or 1943, he predicted, when the armies of the great northeastern confederacy march upon the Holy Land to take away from the Jews the money which by then they will have taken with them to their home land. And the armies of the revived Roman Empire, headed by England and the United States, "always the protectors of the Jewish people," will march to stop the invasion.

These two forces will meet, at Armageddon in a battle which will be so bloody that it will require seven months to bury the slain," Voliva said, "and thus prepare for the second coming of Christ."

Prediction For This Year

Man Who Says World Is Flat Gives Forecast

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, of Zion, Illinois, who says the world is flat, looked into his Bible upon the advent of the new year and predicted that dire things confront the human race in 1935.

Earthquakes, cyclones, droughts, floods, tidal waves, volcanic eruptions, will accompany violent changes in religious, political, social and financial conditions during the year, he forecast.

"It will be old mother earth groaning together with her sons and daughters, sympathizing with them," Voliva said, "in their struggles and difficulties."

"The long train of events, according to the Bible, will characterize the end of the Christian dispensation. The good will become better and the wicked worse. Unemployment will increase. Death will stare us in the face at every corner."

All this, said Voliva, who is overseer of the Christian Catholic Church, is written in the Bible, and he adds, it is part of a long train of events leading up to 1942 or 1943, when the armies of the great northeastern confederacy and the revived Roman Empire meet and destroy each other at Armageddon as a prelude to the second coming of Christ, who then will establish the millennium.

The assassination of the United States in the revived Roman Empire, he said, will be part of two general movements: one of Italy, France, England and the United States into the Fascist alliance; the other of the middle and northeastern European nations into the great northeastern confederacy, a modified type of communism.

These two forces will meet, at Armageddon in 1942 or 1943, he predicted, when the armies of the great northeastern confederacy march upon the Holy Land to take away from the Jews the money which by then they will have taken with them to their home land. And the armies of the revived Roman Empire, headed by England and the United States, "always the protectors of the Jewish people," will march to stop the invasion.

These two forces will meet, at Armageddon in a battle which will be so bloody that it will require seven months to bury the slain," Voliva said, "and thus prepare for the second coming of Christ."
